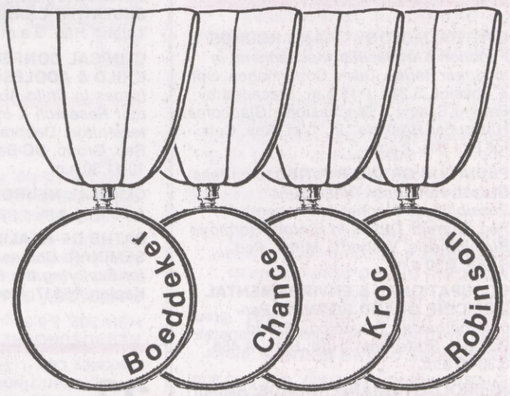
DEADLINE

Deadline for the next issue of Today & Tomorrow, covering the time period Mar. 29-Apr. 11, 1986 will be Monday, Mar. 14, 11 a.m. Please send your copy to Allen Balderson, News & Public Information Services, 532 Parnassus Ave., Rm. 300, x61541 or x62557.



Three prominent civic leaders and a UCSF faculty member will be recognized for their distinguished service to the campus and to the field of education and health care with the highest honor that UCSF awards—the UCSF Medal.

The awards will be presented during the Founders Day Banquet on Thursday, April 3, to Father Alfred Anthony Boeddeker, OFM; Ruth Chance; Robert Louis Kroc, PhD; and Saul Joel Robinson, MD.

A teacher, priest and pastor, Father Boeddeker has been contributing to human health and well being since 1935, feeding and providing shelter for hundreds of thousands of homeless and poor. He has founded numerous free facilities for the poor, including St. Anthony's Dining Room and Medical Clinic, the St. Francis Family Guild and Madonna Residence for Women in San Francisco, and La Casa de las Pobres in Mexico.

Ruth Chance is an outspoken champion of civil rights and a national spokesperson in the field of aging. Chance, who is an attorney, was honored in 1983 by the UCSF Aging Health Policy Center, now the Institute for Health and Aging, as a senior scholar. As executive director of the Rosenberg Foundation from 1958 to 1974, she received the 1985 Distinguished Grantmaker Award from the Council on Foundations for her achievements in enhancing the role and understanding of philanthropy in American life.

Robert L. Kroc, who is a respected endocrine physiologist and pharmacologist, has been for years a colleague and friend of the scientific community. He was head of the Kroc Foundation from 1969 to 1985, which awarded UCSF $1 million to establish the Chair in Rheumatic and Connective Tissue Diseases. The chair now is held by Edward J. Goetzl, MD, director of the Division of Allergy and Immunology.

An eminent pediatric cardiologist, Saul Robinson has been a UCSF clinical faculty member for some 20 years. He is an uncompromising advocate for quality health care for small children and a pioneer in the field of pediatric cardiology. Former president of the American Academy of Pediatrics, he is highly regarded by his friends and colleagues as an experienced clinician and teacher who utilizes the art as well as the science of medicine.

Members of the public and campus community are invited to be part of a special two-hour live broadcast of a FRONTLINE documentary on AIDS originating from Washington, DC, with satellite hookup to UCSF-Laurel Heights on Tuesday, March 25, from 6 to 8 p.m.

Invited to be part of the UCSF-Laurel Heights panel are Mayor Dianne Feinstein and Merle Sande, MD, chief, SFGH medical services, who is UC's designee on the State Department of Health Services AIDS Advisory Committee.

Speaking from Washington, DC, from the National Library of Medicine at NIH, will be a panel consisting of UCSF's Constance Wofsy, MD, associate clinical professor of medicine and director of Project AWARE (Association for Women's AIDS Research and Education Study); and Mervyn Silverman, MD, of the UCSF Institute for Health Policy Studies and director of a new program to help 10 of the largest cities across the country find ways to control the cost of treating AIDS patients. They will be joining 10 other national AIDS experts.

Seats in the UCSF-Laurel Heights audience are available on a first-come, first-served basis. Audience members must be in place at 5 p.m. KQED-TV, Channel 9, will carry the broadcast that same evening at 9 p.m.

The program, called "AIDS-A National Inquiry," will include a provocative 35-minute documentary about a homosexual prostitute who refused to stop his sexual practices even though he knew he had AIDS, and a panel of national experts who will be asked tough questions about how Americans should respond to this urgent public health issue. FRONTLINE's panel of legislative, law enforcement, legal and medical experts will discuss whether a federal policy of uniform national guidelines should exist.

Also hooked by satellite for the live broadcast will be locations in Houston and Denver.

NEWS BRIEFS

The Founders Day Banquet also will honor Faculty Research Lecturer Bruce M. Alberts, PhD, chair of the Department of Biochemistry and Biophysics. The lecturership is the highest honor the UCSF faculty can bestow on one of its members.

Alberts will discuss "Finding by Binding: The Resurrection of DNA Replication Machines" on Founders Day at 11 a.m. in Cole Hall.

Ten campus individuals will be honored at the traditional awards luncheon ceremony on Founders Day, including a very special tribute to UCSF police officers John Fox and Reggie Hamilton, who will receive the Medal of Valor, the most prestigious award that a police officer can receive. Fox and Hamilton are being honored for helping to rescue some 20 people from a burning building in the Western Addition in January. The Medal of Valor has been given only once before to an employee in the entire UC system.

The next issue of Today & Tomorrow will carry a detailed description of all the Founders Day events, including the names of all luncheon award winners and details of a student dance and a large staff party the preceding day.

William Kelley, MD, the John D. Searle Professor and Chair of the Department of Medicine at the University of Michigan Medical Center, Ann Arbor, has been appointed the Second Annual Rosalind Russell Arthritis Center Visiting Professor.

While on campus, Kelley will deliver three lectures:

- Tues., Mar. 25, 10:30 a.m., Carr Auditorium, SFGH: "Pathogenesis and Management of Gout and Hyperuricemia." (Part of SFGH Medicine Grand Rounds.)
- Tues., Mar. 25, 4 p.m., A 326: "Recent Developments in Inborn Errors of Purine Metabolism of Relevance to Rheumatologists." (Part of Moffitt Clinical Conference.)
- Wed., Mar. 26, 11 a.m., Cole Hall: "Hypoxanthine Phosphoribosyltransferase Deficiency: Molecular Mechanisms and Therapeutic Strategies." (Part of UCSF Medicine Grand Rounds.)

Robert M. Ball, former US Commissioner of Social Security with the Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon administrations, will discuss "The Future of Medicare" on Thursday, March 27, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. in Toland Hall. Ball is a senior scholar with the Institute for Health and Aging.

Medicare is the subject of debate today because of its cost and limited coverage for the care of the chronically ill. Ball will discuss a strategy for protecting and improving Medicare, which currently pays only 45% of the elderly's medical bill.

During Ball's leadership in the Social Security system, SS coverage was greatly expanded, benefit protection substantially increased, disability insurance and Medicare added and many other important improvements made. Since his leaving his government post in 1973, Ball has served on the National Commission on Social Security Reform that worked out the historic compromise accepted by Congress and President Reagan and adopted in the Social Security Act Amendments of 1983.

Some 30 educators from across the country, including 10 from UCSF, will discuss "AIDS and the Medical Humanities" at a symposium on Thursday and Friday, April 10 and 11, in the UCSF-Laurel Heights auditorium.

The conference will discuss the personal, professional and social reactions to AIDS, and will help the participants better understand the ethical problems posed by the clinical care of AIDS patients.

The conference is The Society for Health and Human Values' spring national meeting and is cosponsored by the UCSF Division of Medical Ethics and the Department of the History and Philosophy of Health Sciences. Albert R. Jonsen, PhD, professor of ethics, and Guenter Risse, MD, PhD, chair of the history and philosophy of health sciences, are the program directors.

Other UCSF participants are: Molly Cooke, MD, medicine, SFGH; Anne J. Davis, RN, PhD, School of Nursing; David Duncombe, MDiv, The UCSF Landberg Center; Eric T. Juengst, PhD, and Barbara Koenig, RN, CPhil, medical ethics; Bernard Lo, MD, medicine; Harold Varmus, MD, microbiology; and John Ziegler, MD, AIDS Clinical Research Center.

Conference registration is $70; continuing education credit $30. For registration information call x63093.

Tickets still are available for a special preview showing of the exhibit "The New Painting: Impressionism 1874-1886" to be held as a fundraiser for the UCSF Hospitals Auxiliary on Tuesday, April 22, from 6 to 10 p.m. at the de Young Museum.

The exhibit will feature a representative cross section of works believed to have been in the original eight impressionist exhibitions held in Paris between 1874 and 1886, including works by such key artists as Monet, Pissarro, Cezanne, Caillebotte, Seurat, Renoir, Degas, Signac and Sisley.

This preview showing will benefit patients at the Medical Center at UCSF. The Hospitals Auxiliary has raised money for various hospital programs, including furnishings for the Family Lounge, and free TV and art in every patient room in the Moffitt/Long Hospitals.

Tickets at $35 per person can be purchased at the Auxiliary Office, Room 181, Moffitt Hospital or by calling x64906. Advance reservations are required by Friday, April 18.

Pat Schindler, docent of the de Young Museum, will hold two special slide/lecture presentations preceding the exhibit in Cole Hall on Wednesday, March 26, at noon and on Thursday, March 27, at 5:30 p.m.

Nominations are being accepted for the John B. Harris Award, presented annually to a graduating UCSF student who best exemplifies the qualities of the late teacher, physician and civil rights advocate.

John B. Harris, MD, was a member of the UCSF Department of Medicine for some 20 years—as a resident, researcher and at the time of his death, associate professor of medicine. In 1960, he became a member of the CVRI and a full-time faculty member, teaching at SFGH's gastroenterology service.

During the 1960s and up to his death in 1973, Harris was vitally concerned about the civil rights movement, and, in particular, with extending educational opportunities to disadvantaged groups. He was one of the founders of the UCSF Black Caucus and an advisor to black medical students.

Nominations may be submitted by faculty and members of the graduating classes of the four professional schools and the Graduate Division. Nominees are limited to those students graduating in 1986.

The Harris Award winner will receive a cash award and an inscribed scroll. In addition, the winner's name will be inscribed on a plaque to be displayed on campus.

For further information and applications visit one of the student affairs offices or call Sharon Lindeman at x64776. Nomination deadline is Tuesday, April 15.

The Faculty Wives will next gather on Wednesday, April 2, at 10 a.m. for a docent tour of the Whittier Museum, California Historical Society, 2090 Jackson Street. A catered luncheon will follow. For further information call Marjorie Campagna-Pinto, 921-6646.

The School of Nursing has been chosen by the American Association of Colleges of Nursing to host one of seven regional hearings on nursing education, Monday and Tuesday, April 21 and 22.

The hearings will give members of the nursing and higher education communities an opportunity to respond to a working document developed by a two-year, $400,000 Pew Memorial Trust project which defines essential elements for baccalaureate nursing education. The project is being conducted by the American Association of Colleges of Nursing.

The San Francisco hearings will be moderated by Patricia Benner, PhD, UCSF associate professor, physiological nursing; Sheldon S. King, executive vice president, Stanford Medical Center; and Jo McNeil, Seattle-King County Department of Public Health.

Copies of the working document are available in the Dean's Office, School of Nursing, Room N 319Y. To register for the hearing call x61223.

Two top UCSF faculty will be leaving the University in the next few months to fill posts at other health science institutions.

Donald A. Trunkey, MD, professor and chief of surgery at SFGH, will be leaving on March 31 to assume a position as professor and chair of the Department of Surgery at the University of Oregon in Portland.

Trunkey is internationally known as an expert in trauma and has been responsible in large part for establishing SFGH as a leading trauma center. He came to UCSF for his residency in 1966, served as chief resident from 1970 to 1971 and was appointed to the faculty in 1972.

Ada M. Lindsey, PhD, professor and chair of the Department of Physiological Nursing, School of Nursing, has been appointed dean of the School of Nursing at UCLA as of July 1. Lindsey came to UCSF in 1979 from the University of Maryland, Baltimore, where she was assistant dean for graduate students in the School of Nursing.

Attention employees who use the Moffitt Central Cashier: It now is required that all employees cashing personal checks at the Moffitt Cashier's Office, Room M 178, fill out a new application card. If you presently cash checks and have not received a yellow application card, ask for one the next time you are at the cashier's office. No personal checks will be cashed after May 1 unless you have a new ID card.

Attention nursing students in the BS/MS and MS programs! The entry deadline for the Graduate Students' Association and Sigma Theta Tau's Nursing Research Contest is Friday, April 11. Those interested should submit proposed, ongoing or completed research projects to GSA, Rm. 244, Millberry Union. First prize is $250.

Finalists will present their findings at a research forum on Thursday, May 15, in Toland Hall. For further information call GSA at x62233.

Michelle Capdeville & Iris Cheng, second-year students, School of Medicine: Awarded Charles E. Culpeper Foundation Fellowships. Capdeville will do research at the University of Paris, Cheng at the Peking Union Medical College.

PUBLICATIONS

Cynthia D. Scott, research associate, family & community medicine: Co-author, Heal Thyself: The Health of Health Care Professionals (Brunner/Mazel Publishers, NY, 1986).

IN MEMORIAM

Edward A. Smuckler, professor and chair of the Department of Pathology for almost 10 years and an internationally recognized expert on toxic and carcinogenic substances. He guided the restructuring and modernization of the department over the past decade, bringing international recognition in several areas of diagnosis and training. As a pathologist, Smuckler was a frequent consultant on the effects of toxic substances, and was known for his contributions to research on the nature of carcinogenesis and the effects of toxic substances on the liver. He was active in numerous national and international pathology organizations, the American Cancer Society, and national and state panels reviewing environmental carcinogens and their effects on humans and animals. Contributions are preferred to the Edward A. Smuckler Pathology Research Fund, Department of Pathology, Box 0506.

Alice E. Ingmire, professor emeritus, School of Nursing. A member of the campus community for some 35 years, she came to UCSF in 1935 as a supervisor of medical nursing and over the next 14 years earned her master's degree and doctorate at Stanford University. She retired in 1970 at the age of 68 but six years later joined a nursing project in Alaska. She was named president of the State Board of Nurse Examiners by then Governor Earl Warren, and won an award from the National League for Nursing Education for "pioneering the development of continuing education for the improvement of nursing care."

Bleeding in the intestinal tract, a common cause of anemia, now can be treated safely and with significant success with a laser, UCSF researchers have reported.

An argon laser has been used successfully to coagulate small dilated intestinal blood vessels called ectasias, according to John P. Cello, MD, associate professor of medicine and chief of gastroenterology at SFGH. Cello reported on the technique in the March issue of the Annals of Internal Medicine.

Half of the patients in the SFGH study had no further bleeding following laser treatment, and the need for additional blood transfusions was decreased substantially in most patients.

Cello pointed out that the standard treatment for hemorrhaging in the intestine has been to remove the section of the bowel surgically. Now, with the laser treatment, the need for surgery has been reduced in particularly difficult cases.

James H. Grendell, MD, assistant professor of medicine, was coauthor of the study.

The Academic Senate Committee on Research is accepting applications for individual investigator research funds. All Academic Senate members and faculty are eligible. Faculty on sabbatical are eligible for supplies only. Application deadlines are April 7, September 8 and December 8. For research guidelines and application forms visit the Academic Senate Office, Room U 100-H, or call x61307.
